NOTABLE TALK BY TOWNSEND

theorist. Mr. Galbraith stated, and what Michigan needed now was not theories but practical government.

Passing on Mr. Watkins, the Progressive nominee, Mr. Galbraith had more to say. That Mr. Watkins is a gentleman he admitted. "He has answered roll call regularly while he has been in the state senate, and has not created any disturbance during that time. But a perusal of the Senate journal for 1911 will show that on every opportunity Mr. Watkins has voted in favor of a tonnage tax. This course of action can only be due to two causes, the first ignorance of the facts and the second an obtuse sense of right and wrong as between man and man, county and county, state and state. It would put a handicap on the mines of Michigan in competition with the mines of Montana and Arizona. It has the support of the lower peninsula farmers but why not make it a tax on apples, or a tax on grain or a tax on peaches? This would be equally fair."

Galbraith Lauds Musselman.
In referring to Mr. Musselman, Mr. Galbraith declared that Michigan needed a superintendent for the next two years more than she needed anything else—a superintendent who would give her a good business administration. Mr. Galbraith then went on to point out Mr. Musselman's career and record and to give him his unqualified endorsement in his fight for office. Mr. Galbraith took up each of the Republican candidates in turn and pointed out their records in contrast with their opponents. Mr. Galbraith mentioned Mr. Fuller, the candidate for auditor general, Patrick H. Kelley, the candidate for congressman-at-large and H. Olin Young, the candidate for congressman from this district.

Young in Iron Country.

At the conclusion of Mr. Galbraith's remarks, Chairman Bentley informed the audience that Congressman Young had been called to the Iron country and so would be unable to give his address as had been planned. Senator James too was not available for a speech and so he would proceed once to the main speaker of the evening, Senator Townsend. In introducing the senator, Judge Bentley delivered a fine tribute to Mr. Townsend both in private life and as a servant of the people and declared that the people of Michigan could always rest secure while Senator Townsend was looking after their interests.

Senator Townsend's Address.

"This year there will be submitted to the voters of Michigan, a proposition to amend the constitution of the state so as to give the right to vote to the women of the state. I hope that next Tuesday, every one of you will vote 'yes' said the senator.

"Now I realize that in some places this is not a popular subject and I am going to say a good many more things that are not popular everywhere. But I have always believed that women should be given the right to vote. There never was a time when I did not believe my wife and my mother were as competent to vote as some of my neighbors and I have investigated the charges that have been made against this reform in the states where it is in force and I find them all utterly baseless. Again I urge you all to support this proposition at the polls next Tuesday."

Mr. Townsend then took up the national campaign, devoting himself almost entirely to an analysis of the Republican platform of 1908 and to proof that the party had fulfilled all of its pledges during the past four years.

"There can be no selfish motive in my speaking here tonight," the senator declared, "as I am not a candidate for office, having four more years to serve of my present term. I am even paying my own expenses. I have strong inducements to keep me at my own fireside this week as I come here almost straight from Congress, where my work on nine important committees has practically exhausted me. I find men who were for me two years ago against me now members of another political party in fact. I am being told that I received their support as a Progressive and that I have not remained one. I find, too, that there are many who are trying to believe they are members of the Republican party while they are supporting another's nominee for the presidency, but they cannot maintain themselves in that position. I, myself, am a Progressive Republican. I challenge any one here or elsewhere to refer to a single sentiment that I uttered or endorsed during my campaign which does not square with my conduct. If I must vote for some single man, let it be a Progressive—then I am out of line, but if true progress consists, not in what this man says from this or from that platform in Chicago but by work in Congress to improve the conditions of the many, then I am a Progressive."

DANGER IN DELAY

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Calumet People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, gravel and Bright's disease, follow in meretricious succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Help the kidneys with the reliable and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in this locality.

Mrs. J. Kertiss, 303 Franklin St., Hancock, Mich., says: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills, for distressing backache and pains across my kidneys, and they have given me splendid relief. I suffered for several months from dull pains across my kidneys and could not get anything that would help me until I used Doan's Kidney Pills. I willingly recommend them."

"We are approaching a serious condition. We are already in it. A grave crisis is impending. Not that I am a pessimist. I am always hopeful for the better but I realize that we must face the situation. This has become a campaign of misunderstanding and of misrepresentation. Never before in my public life have I seen so much of it as in this campaign."

"President Taft was nominated in 1908 on a progressive platform, a platform approved if not written by Colonel Roosevelt. The convention was dominated by Colonel Roosevelt and if President Taft was not nominated by Colonel Roosevelt at least he could never have been nominated against Mr. Roosevelt's opposition. Mr. Taft has been president about three and a half years now and during that time his administration has passed more progressive legislation than any other former administration had done. Any platform speaker could make such a statement about any man who has been president but I shall now prove it to you."

"It has often been charged that President Taft has broken his faith with the American people. As I said before, this is a campaign of misrepresentation and misunderstanding and this is one of the instances in which Mr. Taft has both been misunderstood and misrepresented."

"In the first place it has often been charged that Mr. Taft has broken faith with the people, has not lived up to his promises to revise the tariff downward. It is not necessary for me to stand here as an advocate of the Republican policy of protection before this audience made up of northern Michigan protectionists."

"Probably there is not a dozen people here tonight who have read the tariff plank in the Republican platform of 1908. This platform does not pledge the party to a downward revision of the tariff. President Taft some time before election declared himself in favor of a downward revision because he believed the people to be in favor of such a revision not because the platform pledged the party to such a program. (Here Senator Townsend read the tariff plank from the 1908 platform.)

"From this you will be able to see that the party pledges itself to a revision of the tariff but not necessarily to a downward revision of the tariff. From this you will see that the president was pledged to call an extra session of Congress to revise the tariff and this Mr. Taft did. He was inaugurated on March 4 and called the extra session April 15. The tariff that this session passed contained provisions for a maximum and a minimum scale so that the president could lower the tariff on goods belonging to a country that was favorable to the United States. This tariff also contained provisions for a tariff board to scientifically study the tariff problem and to report at the next regular session on the wool schedule."

Mr. Townsend then went on to tell about the trouble the Congress was having in securing data that would enable them to frame and adequate tariff under the plan bound upon them in the platform, the difference of production at home and abroad plus a reasonable profit to the home manufacturer and producer. Mr. Townsend then took up President Taft's part in framing this bill and showed how the president had worked for the greatest reduction possible. That a real reduction was made in the tariff, Senator Townsend assured the audience and named a number of articles such as coal, hides, shoes, lumber, etc. that were either reduced or else placed on the free list.

While considering the tariff question, Mr. Townsend brought up the problem of the high cost of living. That the tariff was bound to raise the price of commodities was admitted, but that this was a sign of prosperity and good times was the speaker's contention and he entered into an elaborate argument to prove that the high cost of living was due to other causes than to the tariff and that all the tariff had to do with the situation was to make it possible to live at our present standard.

Mr. Townsend then took up each plank in the 1908 platform for a brief review of the pledges that had been fulfilled. He spoke of the postal savings banks, the enforcement of the Sherman Anti-Trust law, the railroad rate legislation, the legislation that was designed to aid the farmer, the conservation of the natural resources, the Hague tribunal, the Russian treaty of 1912, the old soldiers who had been pensioned, the conservation of the public health, the bureau of mines, the Panama canal, the direct election of U. S. senators, the income tax amendment, and the civil service commission.

In speaking of the Hague tribunal and the peace treaties, the speaker paused to pay a tribute to Mr. Taft as the great apostle of peace and declared that if all Mr. Taft had been thinking about had been to keep himself in office he would have started a war with Mexico long ago.

In closing his address, Mr. Townsend endeavored to point out some of the causes that had rendered Mr. Taft so weak with a certain class of his party. The fact that Mr. Taft was not an advertiser, that large sums of money had been used to stir up feeling against him and that above all the president was a very poor politician and a good statesman. Mr. Townsend pointed out the hostility of the press and the magazines on the question of raising the rates on periodicals and newspapers and accused them of misrepresentation in their efforts to beat this measure.

Mr. Townsend also replied to an anonymous attack on Mr. Young, contained on an unsigned handbill, which declared that Mr. Young was not a friend of the common country Jew as he had not voted in favor of abrogating the treaty of 1832 with Russia. This resolution that Mr. Young voted against was merely a resolution introduced by Congressman Sulzer to break off the treaty relations with Russia instead of doing it in the legal way that Mr. Taft was already doing. The Sulzer resolution would have been an insult to Russia if it had passed, Mr. Townsend declared.

The Chicago convention was also mentioned and a defense of it made in the few minutes that were left to the speaker. Hadley and Borah were quoted to show that the Roosevelt control were without merit and that Mr. Taft had not taken a stolen nomination.

FRED LINCOLN BUYS PAPER

Former News Reporter Purchases South Haven Gazette.

Fred T. Lincoln, known locally as "Link," has come into possession of the South Haven Gazette, according to advices received here by his old friends and has changed the policy of the paper from Democratic to Republican. The new owner of the paper is well known in Hancock, having come here several years ago as the local representative of The News and remaining in this district for several years. He left here four years ago and went to Kalamazoo and then to South Haven, Wis., where he became editor of the Gazette there.

The following from the Grand Rapids Herald explains the reasons for Mr. Lincoln's acquisition of the paper.

"The controlling interest in the South Haven Daily Gazette has been purchased by Fred T. Lincoln, a former newspaper man of Kalamazoo, who four years ago established the paper for P. P. Rowe, publisher of the Kalamazoo Gazette, who now resides from the presidency of the South Haven publication."

"The story going the rounds among 'Link's' many friends here is that his Republicanism became a little too pronounced in his editorial work on the South Haven publication and that Mr. Rowe, a member of the Democratic national publicity committee, called a halt. Lincoln, who was for years prominent in Wisconsin politics and one of the 'old guard' of the badger state, quietly gathered what finances he could together, and by the assistance of a relative in the west was able to wait upon his employer with sufficient money to purchase his stock, which he did and then, laughingly pinning a G. O. P. button upon the coat lapel of the democratic national committeeman, remarked, 'that's the proper label on the South Haven Gazette hereafter, Mr. Rowe.'"

"Mr. Lincoln was a delegate to the republican state convention, is a member of the Republican county committee down in Van Buren, and was one of the original organizers of a thrifty Republican club in the city of South Haven. He is popular in the city and county. While in Kalamazoo as a member of the Gazette staff, he made friends from the start and his ability as a political writer and all-around newspaper man was promptly recognized."

EVERY BONE IN HIS BODY PATCHED AND SPICED WITH METALS.

Washington, Oct. 29.—With every bone in his body, even those in his neck, patched and spiced together with gold, steel and other metals, Theodore William Peters is walking the streets in better health than many of the pedestrians he passes.

Five years ago he fell 350 feet into the St. Lawrence river in an effort to save a companion. Both legs, both arms, his neck, all his ribs and indeed every bone in his body of any size, was shattered, many of them so badly that they had to be replaced with artificial bones.

For eighteen months he was in St. Luke's Hospital, and because of the extreme interest attached to his case the most skilled surgical attention possible was given him.

For one year he was insane, but finally the doctors restored his mind, and the last six months he aided in the fight for life by his own will power.

Peters has a gold plate in the top of his head larger than a silver dollar. He has undoubtedly the most valuable set of ribs in the world, for they are of solid gold.

His neck is held up by a stiff steel brace, and he says that doctors are now working on an electrical appliance that will greatly assist him in turning his head. His elbows have metal joints, and while he can only turn them in certain directions, he seems to experience but little inconvenience in using them. Large sections of bones in his legs have been replaced by metal, but he walks as speedily as the average man.

He was born in Locust Point forty four years ago and before the accident happened he was a structural iron worker, being a member of Baltimore Lodge No. 13, Structural Iron Workers.

Montenegro, now openly defying Turkey, are still an armed nation, and many of their proverbs illustrate their love of weapons. One says: "A man without arms is a man without freedom," and another, "Thou mayest as well take away my brother as my rifle." The famous traveler Kohl likened the Montenegrins to the Greeks of Homeric times, and the comparison will hold good. "Love of freedom and love of weapons, simplicity of life—remember the love of mutton and wine, as described by Homer—hospitality, the superiority of man over woman, all these features together with the fact that the heroes are themselves the singers of their deeds, are to be found in the Montenegrins, as well as in the Greeks of Homer."—Indianapolis News.

Cloth of silver or gold or other metal is now being made in abundance. The yarns have a core of cotton or other fiber, but are chemically coated with metal. When woven the yarns produce most beautiful garments.

BLOTCHES ON FACE DRY AND SCALY

Eczema Began in Hair. Spread to Face. Came on Hand and All Over Fingers. Itching Terrible. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Cured.

205 Kanter Ave., Detroit, Mich.—"Some time last summer I was taken with eczema. It began in my hair first with red blotches then scaly, spreading to my face. The blotches were red on my face, dry and scaly, not large, on my scalp they were larger, some scabby. They came on my hands. The inside of my hands were all little lumps as though full of shot about one-sixteenth of an inch under the skin. Then they went to the outside and between and all over my fingers. It also began on the bottoms of my feet and the calves of my legs, and, oh, my! I never had anything like it and hope I never will again. The itching was terrible. My hands got so I could scarcely work."

"I tried different eczema ointments but without results. I also took medicine for it but it did no good. I saw the advertisement for a sample of Cuticura Ointment and Soap and sent for one. They did me so much good I bought some more using them as per directions and in about three weeks I was well again. Cuticura Soap and Ointment entirely cured me." (Signed) Benj. Passano, Apr. 8, 1912.

Anty Drudge Talks to a Woman Who Hasn't Tried the New Way of Washing.

Anty Drudge—"You poor unfortunate victim of the old-time washday habit! Why won't you wash in the Fels-Naptha way, and strike off the chains that bind you to the steaming washboiler and the all-day hard rub-rub on the washboard?"

If you really believed what we say about Fels-Naptha you would use it, wouldn't you?

But you think that it's too easy—impossible.

Many men are wealthy to-day because the majority thought the same thing about the telephone.

To you boiling seems necessary to thorough cleansing.

With soaps of the old sort it is. The clothes must be boiled in order to get the dirt out by rubbing.

Incidentally much of it gets rubbed in.

Fels-Naptha separates the dirt from the fabric in cool or lukewarm water.

Once separated it is easily rinsed away.

But you must remember that Fels-Naptha is made to be used in cool or lukewarm water, summer or winter.

POLITICAL ADVERTISEMENT.

Eugene A. McNally is running for Prosecuting Attorney on the Democratic ticket. Mr. McNally is a splendid lawyer and an eloquent jury advocate; has a literary education and a wide experience both in his profession and with his fellowmen generally. He has been interested in a majority of the leading criminal cases tried in this county as well as in Baraga and Keweenaw counties within the last decade.

Mr. McNally is a polished gentleman and has always associated with the plain people, claiming that the average man was always without affection and therefore more natural. Mr. McNally has got the reputation of never turning an unfortunate brother from his office because he lacked the necessary means for defense. He is naturally the friend of humanity and has always given his time and his money and his talent to uphold a down-trodden brother. He never inquires into a man's nationality or his religion but goes upon the theory that it is man's duty to help all surviving on the mighty ship of life.

If elected Mr. McNally will make one of the best Prosecuting Attorneys Houghton County has ever had.
